Tragedy stalked the highways throughout Ohio as thousands of persons braved heavy rains and threatening weather to start a three-day celebration of Independence day.

At least eight persons were killed in traffic accidents. Three died when a Columbus-Cleveland bus in which 36 persons rode overturned on a hillside embankment near Mt. Vernon.

Doug and Mary Ready to Separate

(By Associated Press)
LOS ANGELES, July 3.—Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks, Doug and Mary to their world of film followers, are contemplating a separation and possibly divorce.

Pickford, where Hollywood's wealthiest and most famous couple have lived and entertained royalty, is for sale.

This announcement from "America's Sweetheart" herself, left Hollywood stunned today although rumors of a separation had been current and had been denied for more than two years.

These reports said Fairbanks had urged his wife to sell their palatial home. He wanted to cultivate the friendship of the nobility in Europe, he said, while she preferred to remain with her friends in motion pictures.

Actress Has Statement

Miss Pickford's statement was brief: "If there should be a divorce, the grounds will be incompatibility. A separation between Douglas and me is contemplated and Pickford is for sale."

Robert Fairbanks, brother of Doug, and manager of the Fairbanks film interests, said that although he had not heard for several days from Doug, who is in London, his opinion is that "it's all a tempest in a teapot and will blow over."

Actually the two have been separated much of the time for the last two years. Fairbanks has been touring Europe, hunting in Indo-China or making a picture in the South Sea islands. Occasionally Miss Pickford has accompanied him but most of the time she has remained here or in New York.

Fairbanks has indicated he realizes that the peak of his popularity in motion pictures has passed and his chief interest is enjoying himself with the fortune the films brought him.

"I have enough money and I've worked all my life," he has declared. "Now I want to go places." Miss Pickford has limited her production to about one picture a year. Her last film, "Secrets," was but recently released. She made "Coquette" in 1929 as her first talkie.

Makes South Seas Film

Fairbanks was away in the South Sea islands five months making his last picture, "Mr. Robinson Crusoe." His first talkie was "Reaching for the Moon," and was followed by "Around the World in 80 Minutes," a short of animated travelogue which included his hunting expedition to Indo-China.

They co-starred in one picture, "The Taming of the Shrew." Miss Pickford is rated by the county assessor as the second wealthiest person in the film colony. Charles Chaplin being first and Fairbanks third. Together the couple's holdings approximate $4,000,000.

CLEVELAND MAN NAMED TO LEAD WAR ON RACKETS

Joseph B. Keenan To Direct
Department of Justice Drive

WILL HIT FIRST AT GANG LEADERS

Campaign to Be Steady,
If Not Spectacular,
Cummings Says

WASHINGTON, July 3.—Joseph B. Keenan, of Cleveland, has been chosen an assistant attorney general to direct the justice department campaign against racketeering.

He was recommended by Representative Sweeney of Ohio and others.

While his commission has not yet been laid before the President, he has been approved for sometime by Postmaster General Farley.

The formality of Keenan's appointment awaits the President's return from his vacation trip.

Attorney General Cummings recently said that department efforts to break up gangs and end racketeering might lack spectacular action but steady pressure would be applied.

CLEVELAND, July 3.—Joseph B. Keenan, chosen today as assistant United States attorney general to direct a campaign against racketeering, said today his first efforts would be to strike at "gangland leadership."

Seeks Educated Minds

"I am going to get at the expert educated minds which have been drawn into racketeering by huge illicit revenues," he said in discussing his appointment.

He said he believed the modern racketeering gangs form a network.

GROCERY STORE ROBBED; LOSS $100

Kroger Employees Believe
Truck Was Backed Up
To Rear Door

Groceries and other merchandise valued at approximately $100 were taken by thieves who entered the Kroger company store, East State st., about 4:30 a. m. today.

Two barrels of potatoes, eight hams, cheese, cigars, meats and other articles were taken. Charles Herbert, manager, who discovered the burglary, reported to police.

Entrance was effected through a rear door. The thieves are believed by police to have backed a truck or automobile to the door.

Patrolman Nerr Gaunt investigated. A 12-year-old boy is being questioned by Probation Officer J. M. McCready in connection with the burglary, reported through a cash drawer at the Andalusia Dairy company office Saturday.

The boy is reported to have walked into the office, suddenly grabbed a handful of money, then ran out the front door.

Chased by dairy employees, the boy dropped the money but effected his escape.

He is reported to have been apprehended later by Patrolman William Reardon who investigated after the attempted theft was reported by Jesse Beck.

Improvements Under Public Works Program Must Be of Lasting Value

Purpose of Recovery Law Is To Employ Millions of Men by Spending $300,000,000

(Editors note: This is another of a series of articles by staff writers of The Associated Press explaining in simple terms the new laws enacted by the last congress.)

By DON J. KIRKLEY
WASHINGTON, July 3.—The purpose of the public works program authorized by the national recovery law is to employ millions of men by spending quickly three billion, three hundred million dollars of public money building all over the country things that will be of permanent value.

Will Spend Work
The idea is that when jobs have been given to one to three million men, and thousands of factories, mines and quarries have orders for materials, their combined spending will employ many others and spread so much money that private industry will be revived. Other recovery laws fit around this one, and depend largely on its success.

The money is being borrowed by selling bonds. Special taxes are to help repay these bonds and interest thereon.

An administrator of public works, assisted by a board of cabinet officers, is rushing through a list of projects, many to be started within a few weeks. Directors are being appointed for each state and territory to pass on all proposals originating in their areas. Those they approve will be reviewed in Washington.

These are the principal things to be built:
Highways, with extensions through cities; bridges, with removal of traffic hazards.
Waterways, harbor improvements.

Death Ends Career of Famous Flier

(By Associated Press)
INDIANAPOLIS, July 3.—Russell Boardman, 35-year-old Boston, Mass., sportsman and aviator, injured Saturday during the transcontinental air race, died this morning at City hospital.

The one-time go-holder of the world's long distance nonstop flight record, succumbed to injuries which included a fractured skull, a broken shoulder and a punctured lung.

Among the few persons permitted in his hospital room before death came were Mrs. Boardman, who flew here from Providence, R. I., and his brother, Earl, who came from Albuquerque, N. M.

Disaster ended Boardman's 12-year flying career Saturday morning as he lifted his tiny plane from municipal airport, here with 200 gallons of gasoline, to continue his New York to Los Angeles dash in a $10,000 prize race.

Twenty-five feet from the ground, a cross-wind caught the stubby little craft. It flopped over, hit the ground and bounded about like a wounded bird. Boardman dropped unconscious from the cockpit when ground crews lifted the overturned ship.

Boardman had had many narrow escapes during a career that included motorcycle racing, speed boat piloting and trans-Atlantic flying. His greatest feat in the air was the flight from New York to Istanbul, Turkey, in 1931, with John Poland of Lynn, Mass., as co-pilot.

They made the 5,000-mile journey in 49 hours. It stood for some time as the world's long distance, nonstop flight record.

An 18-hole medal play tournament is scheduled at the Salem Golf club while play will be continued at the Salem Country club courts in a municipal tennis tournament which started Saturday.

The State theater's holiday attraction will be the comedy, "Out All Night," with "Slim" Summerfield and Zasu Pitts in starring roles.

STATEMENT TAKEN AS RAP AT FRANCE

Interpreted As Flat Notification U. S. Is Not Interested In Restoring Old-Fashioned Gold Standard

TELLS WORLD TO LIVE WITHIN MEANS

Experts Believe President Had In Mind
France's Unbalanced Budget and Huge
Military and Naval Expenditures

(By Associated Press)
LONDON, July 3.—President Roosevelt's blunt statement explaining why American finds it necessary to turn down European gold bloc demands for the stabilization of currencies burst like a bomb today in the midst of a world economic conference crisis which threatened to wreck the assemblage on rocks of gold.

The President's statement was interpreted by experts in high conference quarters not only as a flat notification that the United States is not interested in restoring the old-fashioned gold standard, which France and her continental allies have been trying to force him to support, but as a scarcely veiled reproof to France.

Experts expressed the opinion that the American chief executive had in mind France's unbalanced budget and huge expenditures for military and naval purposes as well as uncollected domestic taxes when he said: "When the world works out concerted policies in the majority of nations to produce balanced budgets and living within their means then we can properly discuss a better distribution of the world's gold and silver supply to act as a reserve base for national currencies."

Don't Care About Gold
In many conference circles the President's statement was taken to mean in substance:

"We do not give a row of beans about gold at this juncture. Other nations may stay on gold or abandon it to suit themselves. But we are not lending our support to the maintenance of old-fashioned European gold standards at this time."

In response to the President's statement, both Charles Rist, French expert, and Dr. L. G. A. Trip, president of the Netherlands bank, two of the staunchest advocates of the gold standard, called upon peoples

WAVES PREVENT CABINET MEET

Roosevelt Calls Session,
But Members Can't Reach His Ship

(By Associated Press)
ANNAPOLIS, July 3.—Members of the cabinet gathered here today to confer with President Roosevelt on progress of the recovery program, but choppy seas delayed their boarding the cruiser Indianapolis to sit down with the seagoing executive.

The secretaries of war, interior and agriculture stepped from their automobiles with arms full of brief cases.

After a short try of the rough water, they decided to wait awhile on shore for winds to abate.

The cruiser anchored in Chesapeake bay off the naval academy at 8:30 a. m., far ahead of schedule on his speed trial run from Eastport, Maine.

Rear Admiral T. C. Hart, superintendent of the naval academy, warned against an immediate try at the three-mile trip out to the Indianapolis for the visitors, after he had made the voyage to pay his respects to the President.

A sharp northwest wind churned the waters of Annapolis roads, making it difficult even to navigate the small craft ready to take the cabinet members.

Secretary Ickes, who led Secretaries Dern and Wallace aboard a sub-chaser for the trip to the Indianapolis, was the first to quit the ship upon the word of Admiral Hart.

"After all," he remarked, "I am secretary of the interior and not the exterior."

President Laughs
Restored and refreshed by his two weeks' vacation at sea, the President indulged in a good laugh at the predicament of his stranded cabinet members.

He had seen Henry Morgenthau, Jr., the governor of the farm credit administration, drenched by a wave as he left the Indianapolis in a g g to go ashore.

Secretary Ickes, who is chairman of the special public works board, reported he had an outline of projects ready to put into immediate operation to make jobs.

June Sets High
Mark For Sale of
Autos In County

LISBON, July 3.—Since Jan. 1, 584 new motor units have been sold by distributors in this county, and a monthly peak record was reached during June when 167 units were sold, of which 153 were pleasure cars and 14 trucks.

During June, 658 used cars were transferred, according to Clerk of Courts John A. Noble, this also being a new monthly record for the current year, the office receiving $206.25 in registration fees for bills of sale.

Distribution of new pleasure car units for June follows:
Chevrolet 57; Plymouth 42; Ford, 15; Dodge, 10; Buick, six; Rockne, six; Packard, Desoto, three units each; Pontiac, four; Chrysler, two; Essex, Studebaker, Oldsmobile, Austin, Willys 4, one unit each.

New truck sales show: Chevrolet seven units; Ford, three; Dodge, two; Willys and G. M. C., one unit each.

The month of May was the second highest month of the current year, as records show 132 pleasure cars and nine new trucks sold in the county during that period.

CITES PURPOSE OF WORLD MEET

Roosevelt's Message To Parley Does Not
Mince Words

(By Associated Press)
LONDON, July 3.—The text of President Roosevelt's message to the world economic conference today follows:

"I would regard it as a catastrophe amounting to a world tragedy if the great conference of nations called to bring about a more real and permanent prosperity to the masses of all nations should in advance of any serious effort to consider these broader problems allow itself to be diverted by the proposal of purely artificial and temporary experiment affecting the monetary exchange of a few nations only.

Points to Larger Purposes
"Such action, such diversion, shows a singular lack of proportion and failure to remember the larger purposes for which the economic conference originally was called together.

"I do not relish the thought that insistence on such action should be made the excuse for continuance of the basic economic errors that underlie so much of the present world wide depression.

"The world will not long be lulled by the specious policy of achieving a temporary and probably artificial stability in foreign exchange on the part of a few large countries only.

"The sound internal economic system of a nation is a greater factor.

Mussolini has a flyer here who can stay upside down longer than the American delegation in London.

There is the cutest little German war ace who cut out his engine and does everything in the air with a dead engine, loops, spins, rolls, climbs, and then lands, all this with no more power than congress had last session.

THE BACK STRETCH

It is no slight to July to point out at its beginning that August follows soon after—31 brief days. And after August comes September, which marks the end of summer and the beginning of another winter.

In other words, the 1933 summer is getting along. The season has rounded the turn and is going into the back stretch at a good clip. Before anyone realizes it, there will be nothing left but a rapidly diminishing space between the end of the growing period and the first frost.

Circumstances this year have given special significance to the swift passage of summer's brief weeks. A vast experiment with economic control has been associated naturally with seasonal divisions. The people are watching not only the normal progress of time but the unfolding of their recovery plans.

A pronounced turn for the better by fall has been predicted. It is believed widely that if increasing employment holds up until September a good part of the battle will have been won. The program which was completed in June will get its first actual tests in July and August. Its worth will have been determined to a large extent before frost.

Three years of disagreeable experience have made a dreaded thing of the beginning of winter. With unemployment totals increasing every year, there has been real apprehension of society's ability to meet adequately the great demand for relief. Another winter with increases corresponding in amount to those of 1930, 1931 and 1932 undoubtedly would have produced hardship far beyond anything which had been seen previously.

But the country believes it can expect a decrease this year. It looks forward confidently to developments in July and August that will prove to even the most skeptical that recovery from the depression has gained sufficient momentum to carry it through the winter. By next spring, it hopes to be able to forget the worries which have occupied men's minds so constantly for the last three years.

ANNUAL PROTEST

In an intriguingly worded statement, Mme. Charms of Paris, whose opinions on clothing are supposed to be taken seriously, tells of women's clothing that adorns but does not conceal. Not wishing to speak harshly of the probable effect of the schemes that will be used, the lady hastens to point out that the mode is not inspired by nudism but that "women, nevertheless, will give the impression of nudity under their summer robes." Ahem.

Although there probably was no malicious forethought in springing such a story right in the middle of a heat wave, the strong reaction isn't hard to gauge. And not the least part of the reaction, by far, will be produced among sweltering males.

This morning and every morning for many days past they have climbed into their clothes with bitter consciousness of the penalty which fashion exacts from them. They have buttoned up heavy shirts and tied up the top effectively with a necktie. Unless they were among the fortunate minority owning special summer outfits, they have climbed into heavy trousers which drape their legs in hot folds of woolen cloth.

To complete the torturous ensemble, they have climbed into heavy shoes and anchored their socks with inch-wide bands of rubber. Most of them, before venturing into the streets, have felt obligated to protect themselves against any possible relief from cool breezes with padded coats. Thus, both concealed and adorned, they have worried through a long day. Occasional glimpses of the other sex in scanty clothing which was dangerously close to anticipating the adornment-but-not-concealment policy of Mme. Charms added nothing to their ability to accept their fate.

An annual protest against this sort of thing is never out of order. As long as the human body is to be brought into the open, as it were, how about giving the men at least one ventilating break in their armor of concealment?

What Others Say

TWO VERDICTS ON MITCHELL

The jury verdict of not guilty in the case of Charles E. Mitchell, former chairman of the Nation City bank, does not invalidate the public verdict of reprehensible practices with respect to income tax payments. The jury has found, in effect, that Mr. Mitchell's actions were within the law; yet they were not the kind of thing the public understands that the law was designed to permit.

The jury was asked by the court to decide the question whether Mitchell's sale of stock in both the years 1929 and 1930 was a bona fide transaction or more for the specific purpose of income tax evasion. The court took note of the fact that no transfer stamps were affixed to the securities allegedly sold; evidence showed that Mrs. Mitchell, to whom the sale was made in the former year, had no adequate funds for payment, and that there was no motion of payment; and it was brought out that J. P. Morgan & Co., who held the stock as collateral, were not even advised a sale had been made, although Mitchell's attorney repeatedly counseled him to give such notice.

These are but a few of the points that were involved. The jury apparently decided that the weight of evidence lay on the other side. But the public will not overlook Mitchell's testimony before the senate banking committee last March that he sold the stock in 1929 to avoid payment of any income tax for that year; and it will discount the defense assertion that it was popular clamor the jury disregarded in its verdict.

Mitchell has been punished heavily, notwithstanding the verdict now rendered in his favor. He has suffered the loss of confidence not only of the general public, but undoubtedly, of much of the financial world. His experience will stand as a warning, rather than an invitation, to others to follow his example. But even if there should be the inclination to follow the example, the law in the future should make that course impossible.

Altogether, the Mitchell case affords a pitiable instance of failure to accept the responsibilities that go with the possession of wealth and with high position. The lesson and the warning of it will not go for naught.—Kansas City Star.

The Stars Say:

For Wednesday, July 5

While this day may be expected to be very lively and interesting, according to the stellar influences, yet there are portents of perplexities, complications and personal anxieties despite the most tenacious perseverance and patient effort to overcome these. There is danger in finances, speculation being hazardous as well as investments. Employment may likewise develop unfavorably or dismissal, although literary pursuits and contacts flourish. Be wary in all.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of much liveliness and general interest but complications, annoyances and financial hazards give concern despite diligence, patience and perseverance. Safeguard employment as well as funds, which are not safe either in speculation or investment. Be on guard against trickery, fraud and duplicity. Private affiliations also prove anxious.

A child born on this day should be clever, capable, diligent and responsible. It should be ambitious, large hearted and popular and should advance in life by these.

New York

Day by Day
By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, July 3—Diary of a modern Pepsy: A note from Eva Tanguay she has recovered of her blindness. And Roscoe Peacock writes he carried a wreath to Pere Lachaise to lay on Oscar Wilde's grave. Also I hear Lou Hauser, long a figure about the Paris Ritz bar, is gravely stricken.

At my typing and through town, meeting Ben Troop and Ruby De Remer, living three years abroad, and then to Camille Dreyfus's tea, a gay gathering with plenty of giddap. So dropping in to see Almy Clay, against her journeying to Vichy. And to Anne Kirkpatrick and Bill Hamilton's wedding.

To dinner with Hattie Belle Johnston and Mrs. Blanche Clark and the George Delacortes, there and we watched pocket movie. Hattie Belle filmed of Gandhi and his wife in India. Home, reading "Gay Girl" by my old city editor R. E. MacAlarney, and one might think him a rounder about scately professorial.

Speaking of gay girls, I witnessed a fluff of Broadway fellowship near 49th street last evening. Two ladies of the evening were on patrol. A well-barbered wounding in passing clipped out the side of his mouth. "Tsnay, fly cops are trailing." They murmured thanks with no show of recognition, lured into an innocent tea room. And surely enough, two debased gents with the unmistakable halo of Central Office, sauntered up, hailed at the door dubiously, and went on.

Billy Gaxton, the light comedian who has had the longest ineffectual run of the past three years, is in Europe where he will invest a large slice of his enormous earnings in a perfume importing business. Gaxton, reared in the flinty ruff-scut of Tad's old ball-wick south of the city in San Francisco, is unashamedly fond of perfumes. He and a chemist friend have been for years experimenting with blends. He thinks he has something—a perfume for men." And he's going to back his judgment manufacturing it.

Personal nomination for the most astonishing of the parlor magicians—the 23-year-old Glen Pope, from Corpus Christi, Texas.

All of a sudden Grace Moore seems away out front as the leading prima donna. I recall her first appearance in a musical comedy several years ago exploiting a fatigued imperial smile and little talent. One read of her singing here and there in Europe with no special furor. Then came her Metropolitan engagement and her appearance in an operetta which revealed a voice of surprising quality. And success.

Thingumabobs: Warden Lawes gave each of his 2,386 "guests" a Christmas present and received one note of thanks. Amos Sulka, perhaps the world's best known haberdasher, started in Anderson, Ind. Sidney Solomon, of the Casino, orders lots of dishes he never touches, because he likes to see food on the table. . . . He went hungry often as a youth. . . . Clark Gable wanted to open a necktie stand with Earl Benham, New York tailor and, turned down, went to Hollywood for a job. . . . Ferdie Fleischmann, Wall street florist, has to shave three times a day. . . . Yorkie and King are one of the wealthiest couples out of old time vaudeville. . . . Motoring from California, the only hotel denying hospitality to Emily Vanderbilt's two sheep dogs was in Dallas, Tex.

Many debutantes are socially sobered by excursions into relief work among the unemployed. What they entered as somewhat a lark brought them vis-a-vis with the stark ugliness of the other side of the picture. Recently an actual descendant of a cog in the Lowell-Cabot-to-God machine told a magazine she is convinced the next generation will have no society or great fortunes. That the $600,000 Barbara Hutton is the last royally-seeking heiress. Hooray!

Rich sons are also no longer unfurling the job. All have taken in sail. Broadway hasn't a single millionaire play-boy. The last of the guild was Phil Plant, once husband of Constance Bennett, and a globe trotter. Asthma, coupled with emul eddied him around the parlor lamp in carpet slippers. His Sutton Place menage hasn't even a bar. The chief diversissement is backgammon.

But young Plant and other ex-stayouts will never feel completely out of the hurrah until some bright-eyed enip peers into their closets with: "You all right, nonkie?"—meaning uncle. A friend's daughter bid that to me the other evening. A fine high tiddlydy high!

No Medicine to Prevent Gallstones

A friend of mine recently had an operation for the removal of gallstones. During his convalescence he was told that forty-two stones had been found. The patient was amazed and could not believe it possible. To convince him, the surgeon showed him the specimen jar containing the stones. Then and only then was my friend fully convinced of the truth of the story.

Gallstones may vary in number from one to fifty, or even more, in rare instances a hundred. When many gallstones are present they are unusually small, smooth and round. When few are found they are likely to be large, rough and irregular in shape. The latter cause more pain and may cause frequent attacks of gall-bladder or gall-bladder colic.

Symptoms of Gallstones. Not all cases of gallstones are painful. The pain is caused when the stone moves, trying to leave the gall-bladder. This sets up a muscle reflex, leading to severe pain over the lower borders of the right ribs. The pain may be referred to the right shoulder and back. It is often confused with rheumatic and neuritic pain. Sufferers from gallstones complain of indigestion, nausea, loss of appetite and constipation. The symptoms are more marked when the stones interfere with the passage of bile. When this happens the skin of the patient becomes yellow.

Normally the bile leaves the gall-bladder and enters the first part of the small intestine. A stone may enter the bile duct and prevent the passage of bile. When this happens the bile overflows and is poured into the blood stream. This leads to "jaundice" or discoloration of the skin.

Neglect of gallstones leads to inflammation of the gall-bladder. This is known medically as "cholecystitis." "Cholelithiasis" is the technical name for gallstones.

Use of Patent Medicines. I am often asked whether gallstones can be cured by operation alone. This is the only method of getting rid of the offending substances. Do not be misled by statements concerning the value of certain patent medicines recommended for the cure of gallstones. They are not approved by the medical profession. As yet we have no medicine that will prevent gallstones, or dissolve them.

If you are a sufferer from gallstones and operation has been advised, do not delay. It is a dangerous affliction to neglect. In the hands of a competent surgeon, the operation is a simple one and need not be feared.

It will comfort you to know that millions of men and women have lived long and comfortable lives without knowing they had gallstones. It is only when they cause definite trouble that they need attention.

HITLER
SUPPLY AND DEMAND
ENGLAND AND RUSSIA

—By Arthur Brisbane—

(Copyright, 1933 By King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

GERMANY'S chancellor, Hitler, denies he will leave the Catholic church to become a Protestant. It had been suggested that he would make himself head of Germany's Protestants as "summus episcopus" or "head bishop" which is the title formerly borne by the Kaisers.

However, as Hitler's government has forbidden all Catholic societies and promises to destroy the powerful Centrist Catholic party in parliament, the Vatican may have something to say about Hitler remaining a Catholic. He cannot remain Catholic if the pope forbids it.

GERMAN "NORDICS" talk nonsense about time wasted, taking care of weak delicate children.

Many children destined to be useful and great are extremely weak in infancy. The brain of an infant under normal conditions, takes up the greater part of the child's blood supply. Where the brain is unusually large, the rest of the body is apt to be poorly supplied with blood, causing weakness in babyhood.

Any German professor could supply Mr. Hitler with a long list of great men who once were delicate babies, and well worth bothering with.

THE OLD LAW of supply and demand still works. Beginning Saturday, thanks to the common sense of Postmaster General Farley, local postage on letters for delivery in cities where they are mailed, was reduced from 3 to 2 cents.

Supply and demand had shown that in congested population centers can be delivered for less than 3 cents by messenger. Banks and other business houses were saving money, delivering notices of various kinds direct.

THE BRITISH are business men first of all, and Russia seems to turn in that direction. Russia has released two British engineers locked up for sabotage after one of the English prisoners had confessed. The British prime minister and soviet government representatives are having friendly talks, and the two countries will resume "business as usual."

Lord Beaverbrook, a Canadian, who owns the London Express and knows the British, says nothing will ever keep Britain from trading with Russia as long as Russia is able to buy. "Why," says he, "we trade with cannibals."

A BUSINESS EXPERT says the words most often spelled incorrectly by business men's secretaries and others are the following:

"Procedure, lose, benefited, accommodate, adviser, occurrence, supersede, principal, affect."

Frequent mistakes are one "m" in accommodation; two "t's" in benefited; occurrence spelled with an "e"; supersede spelled with a "c" in place of the second "s"; Miss Hakes, he expert, says there are harder words, but they are looked up in the dictionary. In the average business office the words mentioned would be misspelled at least half the time. It might interest you to try it.

DR. SCHACHT, head of the Reichsbank, says Germany can't continue paying unless we stop letting the dollar drop.

How can we stop the dropping? The drop is in Europe, not here. In America the dollar is worth a dollar.

Also why does a cheaper dollar make it more difficult for Germany to pay, since she owes us dollars? If she can get dollars more cheaply, can she not pay more easily?

European countries remind you of the doormouse whose watch wouldn't run. Although he had put the best butter in it "nothing seems to please it," he said.

Light Snow Falls Over In Kane, Pa.

KANE, Pa., July 3.—A light snow fell in Kane today, a striking contrast to the scorching summer heat of last week.

The snow flurry accompanied a drastic temperature drop to 40 degrees. The mercury had been hovering in the nineties all last week.

Today's flurry was hailed as the first July snowfall within the memory of Kane's oldest residents.

Factor's Son Digs Deep For $75,000 In Ransom Money

(By Associated Press) CHICAGO, July 3.—Jerome Factor dug deep into the paternal jeans today to scrape up $75,000 demanded for the ransom of his kidnapped father, but awaited in vain directions for the payoff.

John Factor, the barber who found speculating more lucrative, had been a captive since before dawn of last Saturday. Yesterday's anonymous telephone message received at his first wife's home has been the only communication.

A voice instructed Jerome, the 19-year-old youth who had a chance to study kidnappers at first hand last April when he was a prisoner eight days, to count out $75,000 in small bills, and have it ready for delivery today.

All night Jerome and G. Gale Gilbert, attorney for the missing gambler, waited in the strategic headquarters in a loop hotel tower. They had made arrangements through a brokerage house to have funds ready on call today. It was understood they would offer $25,000 to buy back the millionaire whom the British government also would like to have in custody.

Factor is fighting in the supreme court an extradition decree that would take him back to London, his birthplace, to defend a charge that he collected $750,000 in the full knowledge that he had earned it by mining stock manipulations at the expense of British investors.

Storm's Fury Felt In Chicago Areas

(By Associated Press) CHICAGO, July 3.—A trail of torn and twisted homes and debris today marked the path of a violent wind storm that swept over a 30-mile course from Elgin, Ill., to Chicago. There were various estimates of the damage, some of them as high as $2,000,000.

Along the Fox River valley between Elgin and St. Charles, about 40 cottages were wrecked. Fifty others were unroofed, huge trees in Chicago's suburbs — Glen Ellyn, Wheaton and other localities were snapped in two like matchwood.

There were no fatalities but approximately a score of persons were injured.

In Chicago about 28 houses were unroofed, power lines broken and more than thirty fires kept firemen busy. Hail added to the damage of the wind in some localities and much of the loss was due to ruined truck gardens.

Striking yesterday, the wind, which reached a velocity of 57 miles an hour, apparently traveled from the northwest to the southeast, finally spending its force in Lake Michigan.

The Chicago Municipal airport was hard hit. A score of planes were damaged. One was wrecked, and an employee was critically injured.

Chicago's Century of Progress exposition suffered slight damage. A tent was blown down, injuring one man, and a section of the wall of the travel and transport building collapsed.

Temporary Aid Is Given to Marooned

(By Associated Press) SANDUSKY, O., July 3.—A line was shot across the surging waters of Lake Erie shortly after daybreak today and eight persons marooned on a jetty at Cedar Point pulled it in. They found on the end a key that meant warmth and shelter after a trying night spent huddled about a small shed where lashing waves drenched them periodically.

Meanwhile, Captain John Newman of the steamer, Masco, asked police to hold doctors in readiness while it made an attempt to take the party off.

Marooned By Waves The party had been marooned on the jetty since Sunday afternoon when a sudden storm whipped up huge waves that frustrated every attempt of coast guardsmen to reach them. When the water still was too rough to permit the coast guard cutters to take them off this morning, J. J. Morton, commanding the jetty, shot the line with the key attached onto the jetty and instructed the party to find shelter inside the shed until the water should calm enough to permit them to be taken off.

Foxx Clouts Four Home Runs As Macks Split With St. Louis

YVES AVERILL'S MARK; HUBBELL WINS LONG TILT

New York Giant Slabster Victor In 18-Inning Battle, 1 to 0

YANKS AGAIN UPSET CLEVELANDERS, 7-3

Fine Hurling Feats Mark Games In National; Braves Blank Reds

BY HUGH S. FULLETON, JR., Associated Press Sports Writer

Two already famous stars, Carl Hubbell, slender southpaw flinger of the New York Giants, and Jimmie Foxx, big clouter of the Philadelphia Athletics, had forced their way into the baseball headlines today.

Wins 18 Inning Game

Hubbell turned in the season's most remarkable pitching feat as he twirled 18 arduous innings, the longest game of the campaign and blanked the St. Louis Cardinals 1 to 0, in the first half of a double-header that brought the Giants a clean sweep and a 5-1-2 game lead over the Cards.

Foxx clouted two home runs in each game of a twin bill against the St. Louis Browns, bringing his total up to 24, but despite this record-equalling feat, the A's got only an even break, winning the first 6-5 in ten innings and taking an 11-6 trimming in the second game.

The four homers equaled the major league record for a double-header, made by Earl Averill of Cleveland in 1930.

Hubbell's performance overshadowed the work of his teammate, Bud Parnesse, who blanked the Cards in four hits and fanned 13 in the second game, winning a 1-0 decision when Johnny Vergez clouted a homer off Dizzy Dean in the fourth.

Fifties Great Ball

Hubbell gave only six hits and no walks in the marathon opener. Tex Carleton put up great opposition for 16 frames, but finally went out for a pinch hitter and Jess Haines gave up the winning run on two walks, a sacrifice, a force-out and Hughie Critz's single.

The game equaled the major league record for the longest 1-0 contest and the 17 scoreless innings were only three short of another record.

Five pitching feats marked most of the other National league games as the Brooklyn Dodgers took two games from the Chicago Cubs and the Boston Braves broke even with the Cincinnati Reds.

The Dodgers slugged their way to the first victory, winning 7-3 with 16 hits, but Walter Beck's six hit pitching was an important factor in their 4-3 second game triumph, decided when Al Lopez stole home in the ninth.

Dutch Brandt allowed only four hits as the Braves defeated Cincinnati, 1-0, but Larry Benton came back with a three-hit performance and the Reds won the nightcap, 9-0. The Phillies and Pittsburgh had an open day.

The New York Yankees edged closer to the American league lead by beating Cleveland 7-3, while Washington and Detroit were kept by rain. The result left New York only a half-game behind the Senators and dropped the Indians into sixth place back of the Chicago White Sox, whose doubleheader with Boston was rained out.

Traveling the Title Road With Primo Carnera

Primo Carnera wore a broad grin as he was "crowned" after winning the heavyweight championship from Jack Sharkey. But life has not been all smiles for the Italian giant as the sketches show. Carnera's career is illustrated in three installments, of which this is the first.

Primo Gains Laugh on Those Who Ridiculed Him in Early Fistic Duels; Story of His Life

[EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the first of three installments of the life story of Primo Carnera, now heavyweight champion of the world, as written for The News by International Illustrated News.]

Now the palooka wears the crown of fistiana. He has the last laugh, while the experts are vainly seeking for the inevitable flood of excuses to account for something that "just couldn't happen," but did.

Meteoric Climb
Although the career of Primo Carnera is not quite parallel with that of an Alver boy, it is just as strange, if not stranger, than the progress of any fictional hero born in the fertile brain of the great Horatio.

The new world's champion literally rose from rags to riches in the short span of five years. Back in 1928, Da Preem's feet were adorned with burlap sack in lieu of shoes; today he owns scores of pairs of hand-made footwear and suits in every conceivable shade and model by the grocer. The remarkable feat about his success is that he achieved it almost in spite of himself. For Carnera does not really like fighting. He never did, his great ambition being in the direction of art, for the giant is no mean cartoonist, some of his work showing distinct promise and originality.

His Early Days
Carnera was born Oct. 25, 1906, in Sequais, a small town in Udine Province, Italy. He was the first born of four children, and for that reason was given the name Primo (First). His brothers are named in order of birth, Secondo (Second), Terzo (Third) and Quarto (Fourth). All are big men, well over the average size, despite the fact that their parents were not of striking proportions.

In his 13th year, Primo, already grown to six feet, two inches, appeared to have indulged in his first bout of thinking, as a result of which he decided his huge appetite was too much for his parents to cope with any longer. So he left home and set out to seek his fortune in the best Dick Whittington manner.

As it was impossible to find a pair of ready-made shoes to fit the young giant, Primo wrapped his feet in burlap at the beginning of that long trail which, although he didn't know it, was to lead him to the championship of the world.

Absolutely without schooling, Primo was badly handicapped in his search for work. But he wandered about Europe, from job to job, laboring with pick and shovel or at any other task that provided a meal and a place to sleep.

Meet the Champ!

Fundamental Six

Fundamental 6—Hip power—is a momentum producer. Momentum is simply weight backing up speed. Just as a speeding locomotive might crash through the side of a house because of its great weight, a speeding fly could not crash through a pane of glass, because of its lack of weight.

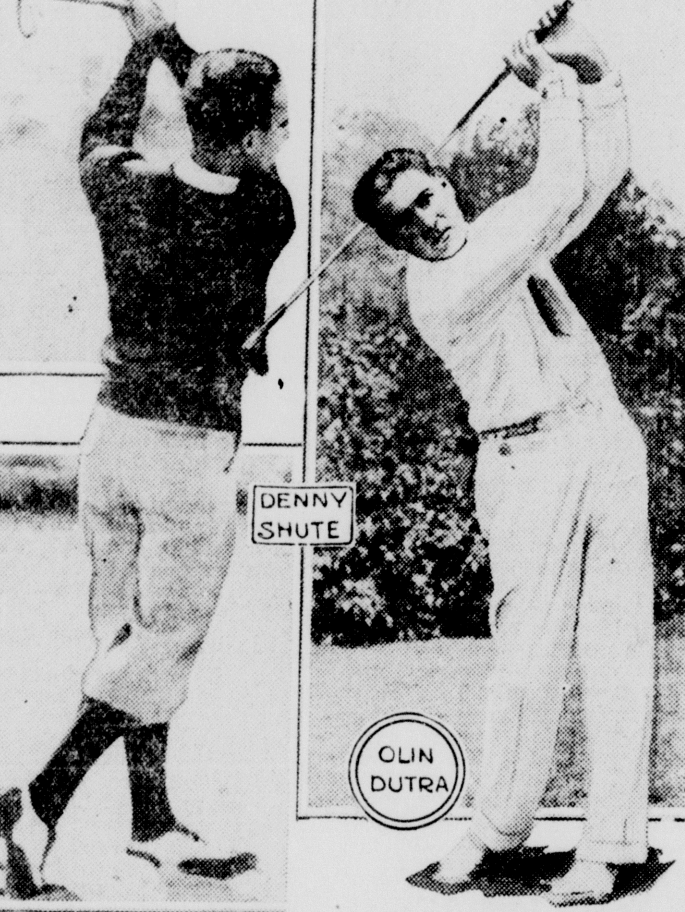

Since a golfer is to be consistently accurate a not free to sway his head, he must sway only the middle section of his body, i. e., the hips. This is done by a sideways movement of the hips. I do not mean to convey the impression that the hips do not rotate, because they do. But their rotary motion is done merely in sympathy with—and for the purpose of—facilitating the rotary action of the shoulders; the hips need not turn more than half as much as the shoulders turn.

A very interesting series of motion pictures of Willie Macfarlane appears in the June issue of Golf Magazine. Illustrations 1, 2 and 3 show clearly that Macfarlane during the initial movement of his back swing moves his right hip sideways to the right fully three inches. By the time his club is half way up in the back swing his hips start to react forward and continue to act forward until the impact.

While this movement is not an extensive one, it is very important, because pivotal action of the body and shifting of the body weight is impossible without it. The hip action is very slow and must act ahead of the club, the club catches up with it. In the backswing start the hips shifting and turning simultaneously but in striking the hips must shift forward first and upward later, because there is a great difference in the speed of the back swing as compared with the down swing.

Members of American Ryder Cup Team Show You How to Improve Your Golf

This is the second of a series of illustrated lessons in which America's greatest professional golfers, the men chosen for the 1933 Ryder Cup team, demonstrate how the average player may improve his game.

DENSMORE "DENNY" SHUTE (left) and Olin Dutra illustrate some of the most important points about the swing. It is important to remember that balance is all important. The weight should never be allowed to remain on one side; it should shift from the left with the swing to the right on the backswing and forward on the downswing. As the backswing starts, the left shoulder and left arm must pivot toward the right. The left hand should be in control just before the ball is hit.

In these shots Shute is using a midiron and Dutra a driver. Dutra has the club gripped firmly, but not rigidly, allowing greater freedom to his wrists. He has the club more in the fingers than in his palms. Try both the finger and the palm grips and you will see that the palm grip stiffens the wrists and the forearms, whereas the finger grips allow greater freedom of action.

Graduation Hits Notre Dame

NOTRE DAME, Ind., July 3.—Graduation has taken a tremendous toll of star athletes from the campus of Old Notre Dame.

Five captains of various sports, and a score or more of football, baseball, basketball, track, tennis and golf stars have left their Alma Mater never to return again to fight its battles in wars of sports.

The captain that graduated were Paul Host in football, Johnny Baldwin in basketball, Johnny McGrath in baseball, Fred MacBeth in track and Louis Chrest in tennis.

Although benched early in the last gridiron campaign, Host came back into the game and played the Trojans of Southern California off their feet and checked their running game completely.

MacBeth was not only an outstanding cinder path star himself, but was an inspiring leader to the runners, jumpers and throwers of the Old Blue and Gold.

McGrath, after a poor start in baseball finished the season in a blaze of glory.

Among the outstanding football stars that have been lost by graduation to the "Fighting Irish" were: Laurie Volar, Charlie Jaskwich, Jim Harris, Mike Koken, Ed Kosky, Joe Shrecketski, Emmet Murphy and Joe Kurth.

Mike Leding, Ben Alexander, Norbert Christian, Joe McCabe, Milton Foley, Savino Cavendish, Bernie Cossino, Bill Pierce and Ed Vyzral, also are graders whose services were over with the presentation of diplomas.

Leo Keating and Arnie Seidl were stars lost to the baseball squad.

Frank Murphy, dash sensation, never beaten in a dual meet, also was lost.

He ran the first race—three one-half mile laps—in 1 minute 45 seconds and did the regular 5-mile event in four minutes 18.2 seconds.

Two drivers, Thomas Wall of Dayton and Vernon McCombs of Iowa City, were hurt in trial runs before the races.

Player Dies From Injury, Struck On Head by Baseball

OMAHA, July 3.—While the pitcher who "beamed" him sat grief-stricken at his bedside, Jess (Jake) Batterton, 19, second baseman on the Springfield Western league baseball club, died this morning at a hospital. He had suffered a fractured skull and a cerebral hemorrhage.

Batterton was hit by a pitched ball in a game here yesterday between Springfield and Omaha. After resting a moment he arose, walked to the clubhouse and protested that he was "all right" when the Omaha team physician ordered him to a hospital.

His teammates left Omaha last night unaware that his condition had become critical. An emergency operation was performed early today.

Floyd (Swede) Caron, young right hander, was the Omaha pitcher who threw the ball that killed Batterton.

Will Test Sanity Of Surgeon Slayer

(By Associated Press)
DAYTON, O., July 3.—James D. Shadbolt, 33, Spanish-American war veteran, confessed slayer of Colonel Vernon Roberts, chief military officer at the National Military home here, last Thursday night, entered a plea of guilty to the indictment of first degree murder returned against him when arraigned today. Judge Mason Douglas declined to accept the plea, and after a conference announced that a sanity commission to test Shadbolt's mental condition will be appointed.

Shadbolt, who police said, admitted having shot Colonel Roberts fatally because he was one of many veterans to be taken off the federal pension rolls in line with the recent economy act, in his confession expressed a desire to have legal preliminaries eliminated and to be sent to the electric chair as soon as possible.

No Clue to Murder

STUEBENVILLE, O., July 3.—The murder of James "Jerry" Magnone, 34, of Yorkville, had authorities of two counties stumped today. Magnone was shot down in Yorkville's main street by two men in an automobile who hailed him as he was walking to work. As he approached their car, they opened fire.

Magnone fell, shot six times in the abdomen. Jefferson county authorities asked the Belmont county sheriff to aid in the search for the killers, but no clue were found.

WHITE WEIGHING ASSEMBLY ACTS

$30,000,000 Tax Program Enacted; Budget Is Adopted

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, O., July 3.—A $30,000,000 tax program enacted, an $80,000,000 budget adopted, and recovery legislation passed in a swirl of activity that carried the lawmakers into the early hours of Sunday morning, the Ohio legislature was adjourned today and Governor George White was considering the legislature's finished task.

Actually, the general assembly will adjourn sine die July 10. The official date will bring back officers of the legislature to sign the printed and enrolled bills.

Will Consider Results

Meantime, Governor White could ponder the wide powers given him to regulate business in intra-state commerce, as a part of the state's participation in the industrial recovery setup; he could study the amendment of the state's anti-trust law. He could scan the taxation program born in the senate and pushed through the house as a substitute to the administration's sale tax bill.

The governor has indicated he will either sign the tax on measures or allow them to become a law without his signature.

In the event the measures will not yield the anticipated revenue for poor relief and schools, he will call the legislators back at a special session next fall, the chief executive said, to finish the task. At that time, if it comes, it was expected the governor would again propose some sort of sales tax.

Assessments on liquid fuel, cigarettes, cosmetics, beer, amusements and vending machines were included in the tax schedules estimated to produce $30,000,000 a year for poor relief and schools.

Catholic schools, however, which had appealed for a share of tax funds were given only slight hope. Enabling legislation was offered as a budget amendment three times in the closing hours of the senate session and was defeated each time. Then the senate voted to allow a committee to study the problem for action if a special session is called.

Parochial schools protested that Catholics too, must bear the tax burden and that unless financial assistance is given, 170,000 children in the schools will be left without schooling next winter.

Governor to Set Codes

The assembly measure for industrial recovery allows the governor to set up arbitrary codes of business conduct and practice and even to fix prices when voluntary agreements among intrastate businesses fail. His powers would be similar to those given nationally to the President.

The anti-trust law amendment would make the statutes more flexible to permit agreements among businesses.

The legislature found, too, another agreement on a phase of beer control before it ended. Both houses approved a conference report to restrict C and D permits for any one corporation to one in 50,000 population. At the same time it increased from five per cent to 7 1/2 per cent the amount of beer taxes that the state may use for administration of the 32 law.

Passed by the house during its five hours was a measure proposed by the senate which would assure teachers in state-aided school districts their back pay from Jan. 1 to July 1, 1933, by allowing boards of education to issue notes of indebtedness and borrow money on anticipated cigarette tax revenues.

The governor signed almost a dozen bills Saturday. These included legislation for a two-year moratorium on wage assignments and the boosting of garnishee exemptions; for paying hospital bills of indigent auto accident victims; for gasoline tax funds; to allow banks, trust companies and insurance concerns to invest in Home Loan bonds; to reduce to $15 the license fee charged cattle and poultry dealers.

CLEVELAND MAN TO HIT RACKETS

Joseph B. Keenan To Direct Department of Justice Drive of criminal activities across the nation, and are linked together "politically and otherwise."

"When you strike at the intelligent leadership of gangs, and stamp that out you are decidedly on the way to breaking down the whole gang system."

Local authorities are finding it difficult to cope with the menace because gangsters have amassed huge "war chests," Keenan said.

Criminal investigation is by no means new to this 45-year-old Cleveland attorney. His first investigation was conducted in 1919 when he became special aide to former Federal Judge William L. Day, in investigating crime conditions.

A graduate of Brown university and Harvard university, Keenan, a native of Pawtucket, R. I., saw service in the World war with the 135th Field Artillery as a lieutenant, and was cited by General Pershing and the French government for meritorious service.

Keenan is a member of a Cleveland law firm. He will leave for Washington late this week to discuss his new work with Attorney General Cummings, who recently announced the justice department would embark on a steady drive to break up gangs.

Bargains are plentiful. The ads will tell you where.

ROOSEVELT HITS EUROPEAN BLOC

President's Statement Is Taken As Rap At France

of gold standard countries to keep cool.

Roosevelt said confidence can not be shaken if the gold nations immediately pay out metal on demand, but he added that "it is a sign of mental disequilibrium in the geological museum—conference headquarters—that these questions have to be discussed at all."

Trip declared that "states of the so-called gold bloc control about half of the coin gold of the world," adding that "if they cooperate no danger can touch them so long as the public remains cool."

Press in Great Britain

Alberto Beneduce, the president of the Italian council for public works, and another bitter antagonist of currency depreciation, gave the indication that the gold bloc would continue to exert pressure on Great Britain to support them.

He said: "We hope to convince certain circles very soon of the necessity for a rapid return to gold, and we ourselves will certainly not budge an inch from our present position."

Italy, while off the free gold standard, is firmly maintaining the gold value of her currency and is urging a quick general stabilization.

Back to Main Purpose

One expert said: "Mr. Roosevelt, fortunately, is trying to bring the conference back to the main purpose for which it was called, namely to reconstruct the price levels of world trade and to permit trade to flow through natural channels without excessive obstruction."

"If the conference accepts this keynote there is still hope that it will serve its high purpose. His statement leaves no doubt that the President meant what he previously said about domestic progress and willingness to work along really constructive lines."

The President's message said that he would regard it as a catastrophe amounting to a world tragedy if the conference should "allow itself to be diverted by the proposal of a purely artificial and temporary experiment" for currency stabilization of a few nations only.

BUS SLIPS OVER HILL; THREE DIE

11 Others Are Seriously Injured In Crash Near Mt. Vernon

slaughter charge.
William Auferheide, 30, a chauffeur, was killed when his motorcycle collided with an automobile at Cincinnati. Mrs. Michael Roth died in the collision of the Roth machine and two of hers.

Chester Cobb, 35, Dayton, O., was burned to death when the fuel tank of his automobile exploded after being rammed by another car. Cobb's machine was being towed at the time of the accident. Six other persons including four children were injured.

Slips Over Embankment
MT. VERNON, O., July 3.—A Buckeye stage bus slipped off the pavement near here Sunday and as it tumbled down a 12-foot embankment three of its 35-passengers died and the others miraculously escaped death.

Eleven of them were injured seriously and spent the night in a hospital here after rescuers worked with crowbars an hour to extricate them from the wreckage. The others were slightly hurt and all 33 of those who escaped death were given first-aid treatment.

The three dead are:
Arthur S. Bankhardt, 24, an assistant in the chemistry department at Ohio State university, Miss Josephine Vachuska, 40, of Cleveland, and an unidentified man, about 35.

Survivors said all three leaped to their feet as the bus slipped from the pavement to the soft road shoulder and turned over with a suddenness that trapped the entire party within as the bus rolled buckled down on the seats. One of those who escaped, State Representative William Boyd of Cleveland, asserted his good fortune was due to the fact he remembered "a trick I learned when I was a kid—to go down in the seat and get doubled up."

He described the horror of the crash.
"About six miles past Mount Vernon we went up a little hill. We were going about 40, when ahead of us appeared a small car going about 18 miles an hour. It contained an old couple. (Mr. and Mrs. Moses Steel of Wellston).

"The bus driver (Carl Kinley, of Columbus) jammed on the brakes and blew his horn. The space was so close he couldn't stop. He swung to the left and sidestepped the fender of the car. The bus slid off the paving on the soft mud at the side. He stepped on the gas, trying to get back on the paving.

"I got down in my seat just as the bus turned over. There was an awful noise and there was the bus on its back with the wheels in the air."

A party of doctors had assembled at the Mount Union hospital here, planning to leave shortly for an outing, when word of the accident reached them. They abandoned their plans and turned immediately to aiding the injured.

The eleven most seriously hurt who spent the night in the hospital were:
John Grim, Springfield, O., and Miss Ruth Spill, Columbus, both burned by raw gasoline, doctor said; Mrs. E. A. Emmell, Akron, suffering from shock; Miss Mary Stewart, Mrs. C. A. Hughes, Mr. and Mrs. John Paul and son John Jr., all of Columbus, and Mrs. A. H. T. Connaught, all severely cut and bruised. Mrs. Emmen was taken to her first trip after a two-month illness.

"Out All Night" Good Comedy With Pitts and Summerville

still at the peak of "box office" stars... Miss Landi has at last made the directors of movie-land see her acting abilities as well as her beauty.

Since her excellent work in "The Sign of the Cross" she has been given the lead in several of the more choicely films... She will be seen at State Friday and Saturday in another of her late successes, "The Warrior's Husband"... One of the very best of all actresses, you'll like her immensely in "I Love You Wednesday."

The story is built around this quotation: "And if I Loved You Wednesday, What is that to you; I do not love you Thursday, so much is true"... It is clever, witty and a bit unusual.

There are beautiful settings, lovely music and perhaps one of the most elaborate stage settings, for a scene in which Miss Landi appears as a famous ballet dancer, you have ever seen on the screen.

Mamma Arrives
And to cap it all off "mamma" greets the couple as they step off the train at Niagara Falls and determinedly says she will make it a honeymoon for three... That's where Zasu barks and then complications arise one after another.

Kidnaping, dives in Chinatown, fist fights, wild auto rides, all help to make a man out of Slim, much to his bride's happiness, and, of course, everything ends well.

THERE'S a neat cast in "I Loved You Wednesday," concluding this evening at the State theater—the four leading players being Warner Baxter, Elissa Landi, Victor Jory, and Miriam Jordan.

Jory Well Cast
The first two are of course known to all picture fans—Jory will be remembered for his work in "State Fair," and since that picture he has been one of the busiest players in Hollywood—he has his most prominent role in this picture and he's grand.

Miss Jordan was seen in Clive Brook's "Sherlock Holmes" and Warner Baxter's "Six Hours to Live," and she is a most charming and accomplished actress.

As for Baxter, he is, as always, above criticism—he seems to be ever listed as one of the most faultless of actors... Ever popular, he is
